From the Publisher's Desk ...

Well, OK. Publishing a magazine and running a radio show is a lot of work when you also have a day job. No excuses. I missed the Spring issue completely. I hope I've made up for it with this Summer edition - it is packed with goodies and I know you'll enjoy it.

For those of you with existing subscriptions, we've extended your subscription by one issue (unless the Spring issue was to be your last, in which case the front of this magazine is stamped RENEW NOW!). For new subscriptions, hope you enjoy this larger than normal issue.

Remember, we pay for articles that we accept for publication at the rate of $10/page (about a penny a word). Articles should be submitted by e-mail to brian@lvld.hp.com. If you don't have e-mail capabilities, we can accept articles on IBM-formatted floppy disk, in either MS Word, Lotus AmiPro or ASCII text formats.

This issue features a transcript of an interview with Apollo astronaut Edgar Mitchell that was conducted on The ParaNet Continuum radio program by Michael Corbin.

Our psychological consultants, Greg Wheeler and Scott Scribner, have written a review of Whitley Strieber's book "Breakthrough" that you should find interesting.

I've included a fairly lengthy article that was posted to alt.paranet.ufo regarding a study of the 1930s by the Leading Edge Research Group that you should find thought-provoking.

I took some pictures at the recent UFO and New Age Expo in Denver and have included them in this issue. As usual, these expos seem to want to link the two issues, which certainly does nothing to further Ufology as a scientific discipline.

I spend my MICAP column on an explanation of what I think is going on in the world of ufology.

And of course our regular features, Random Walk, ParaNet Postings, Sources and Resources, The ParaNet Continuum Radio Show Update and Sightings return.

As always, we are constantly improving this magazine. Please write or e-mail us and tell us how we're doing. If there's anything you especially want us to cover, either here or on the radio program, don't hesitate to let us know.

Enjoy!

Exclusive Interview with Dr. Edgar Mitchell

Sixth Man on the Moon

Apollo 14 astronaut Edgar Mitchell appeared on The ParaNet Continuum radio show on May 12, 1996. Copies of this show are available on cassette for $8.00 each from ParaNet. See the order form elsewhere in this issue for ordering information. This is a transcription of that live interview.

Mitchell was the sixth man to walk on the moon. Along with Dwight Aaron Williams, he wrote the new book "The Way of the Explorer: An Apollo Astronaut's Journey Through the Material and Mystical Worlds." In 1971, while returning to Earth with crewmates Alan Shepard and Stuart Roosa on Apollo 14, he experienced as startling vision that has driven his life to this day. In his book, he summarizes the scientific studies, parapsychological experiments and spiritual thinking that he's been doing for the last twenty years. In 1973 he founded the Institute of Noetic Sciences, an organization which now has 50,000 members and whose goal is to encourage and sponsor scientific research into the nature of consciousness.

ParaNet: Let's get right to the bottom line. What is your book about?

Mitchell: The studies that I've been doing over quite a number of years have led us to the conclusion that the universe really isn't structured the way we thought. How do we put together what our science has been teaching us for four hundred years on one side, and our mystical experience or inner experience on the other hand? The two of them don't come together very well, and this is an attempt to bring them together and to show that they do indeed fit together that they aren't mutually exclusive and there's a way of looking at this that makes the world look about like we experience it.

ParaNet: 1 think you're hitting the nail on the head - that there's a disparate relationship between religion and science. What happened in your life that has brought you to this point? How has someone with your very fine scientific mind arrived where you are today?

Mitchell: Well it began very early in life when I saw a rather serious dichotomy between the science I was learning and my religious upbringing, in a very fundamentalist tradition.

I had these questions that had been with me all my life, and had put them on the back burner. During my spaceflight, as I looked at the cosmos, and being one of the first humans to be up there these questions all came back. It was clear that our traditional answers both from science and from our cultural cosmology, our religious cosmology didn't hold up very well so we needed to find new ones, and that's what I've been doing.

Caller: I'm in awe of what you've done. Back in September of 1994, while attending a Planetary Society meeting in Denver, a question was asked Alan Shepard regarding the photos that Richard Hoagland has shown. Alan's answer was that he could neither confirm or deny what was asked, but that his presence that night should be food for thought. He also said that it wasn't public disinterest that stopped the lunar missions but rather bureaucratic cost of continuing missions and the lack of proper mission goal planning. Can you comment?

Mitchell: Well, that may be a misinterpretation of what Alan said. I've talked this over with Alan Shepard. In fact I was with him last night. The slant you're putting on this is not the one I would put on it at all. Yes, the Congress and the congressional funding process did terminate the lunar flights, I think a little bit early. but in response to public will. The public really wasn't ready to go forward with this.

ParaNet: Why?

Mitchell: We just happen to be a very fickle public - what have you done for me today? We made the lunar flights look a little bit too easy. It was not obvious that enough new data was coming out. To the scientists, it was obvious that we had a lot to do, but to the general public, they really couldn't see that we were getting our money's worth, because they don't understand that depth of science. I believe we could have kept going for some time and gained a lot of new information.

Caller: Why are so many of the Apollo astronauts members of the Masonic order?

Mitchell: Well I don't know that they are. I've known a few that are, but they're also Boy Scouts and member of other organizations but I don't think there's any more significance to it that that. I also wanted to address the claims of Hoagland and other photo interpreters. Let's not be ambiguous about that - I'm not, Buzz Aldrin is not, Al Bean is not, Alan Shepard is not. All of these claims that there are objects in our photographs that are not being reported are just simply not true. We've gone through this a number of times. That isn't to say there is no possibility that artifacts of some sort might be on the moon. I can't say that's impossible.

ParaNet: I don't feel there's enough solid evidence to indicate any of the stuff that Hoagland refers to. But are you saying there's a possibility that there may be something up there that we haven't discovered yet?

Mitchell: I think that modern thinkers in this area are coming to the conclusion that likely life is ubiquitous throughout the universe. It's not the single accident here on Earth that previous thinking even thirty or forty years ago led us to believe. That more than likely the conditions that spawned life here spawned life elsewhere. Now, the question of "Have we found each other?" is quite a different question! It would not take a civilization too much older than we, a few hundred million years, a billion years, which is not unthinkable, to have discovered us. But in spite of all the controversy about UFOs, we do not have, in the public domain, smoking-gun type evidence. I personally have no firsthand experience.

ParaNet: What about behind the veil of the black budget? Mitchell: I have no firsthand experience there either, but I have been in contact recently with people within government who claim significant firsthand experience and who are working very hard to get the veil of secrecy lifted and to get such people who have classified stories released from their classified restrictions so they can tell their stories. I support this effort enormously.

ParaNet: You do think there could be something behind the veil of secrecy?

Mitchell: Oh I think so. I think that the evidence is rather strong that there is a lot of classified material that should be released to the public and that is very telling. Whether it truly amounts to smoking-gun evidence, that remains to be seen, I kind of think it probably does, but that's just conjecture.

Caller: I saw a UFO when I was a kid. I wondered if you have ever heard of one like this. It was about thirty feet wide, brushed aluminum with a half-spiral staircase visible from a circular opening in the top, the floor was black...

Mitchell: I've read the same literature you have, so I doubt if I can add anything.

Caller: Has there been anything done with gravitational research lately?

Mitchell: There's a lot of work going on now in what's called Zero Point Energy fields and new force field approaches that are probably going to yield some fairly useful information. I'm familiar with a number of scientists working in these areas and it looks very promising over the next few years. Absolutely a re-look at the gravitational and propulsion phenomena, and it's progressing very nicely.

ParaNet: How do you reconcile such an important aspect of our human evolution with the politics that gets in the way of real science.

Mitchell: Well, that's just part of being human at this point in time. Our science is really only 400 years old, dating back to Sir Isaac Newton and that period of the industrial revolution, and our thinking about these issues of what is our nature, what is our consciousness, where did we come from, how did we get here and why go back as long as humans have been self-reflective, which is about 3000 years, and so we have conflicts that are unresolved. It's been my opinion that the way we resolve these conflicts is to understand what it is that makes us conscious, and that's what my book is about. Of course we haven't been able to resolve these issues to this point.

ParaNet: Of course much of that exploration borders on what most people would consider fringe.

Mitchell: Yes. It used to be. When we started doing the Institute of Noetic Sciences in the early 70's, a lot of it was considered fringe - very deep fringe. At this point, so much of it is really mainstream. The notion that attitude affects your well-being. The idea that maybe we're not the center of the universe biologically. The idea that acupuncture is a viable diagnostic alternative tool. Biofeedback is a mechanism for helping us control ourselves. Those are all mainstream ideas now.

ParaNet: I'm curious. What is your academic background?

Mitchell: I have a Ph.D. from MIT in astronautics and aeronautics.

ParaNet: Are your colleagues, associates or peers giving you any difficulty over your ideas?

Mitchell: Oh, no. They used to. They used to say "Gee, where's Ed going?" But by and large, time has changed all that. We've gotten many people coming in and asking questions. Times have changed.

Caller: Have you heard anything about the so-called Photon Belt that our galaxy is supposed to be moving toward that's supposed to have a profound affect upon human consciousness?

Mitchell: I can't speak toward the scientific validity of moving toward a Photon Belt. I don't think it probably has too much to do with our consciousness, whatever it is. I'm not an astronomer, so I can't speak to this, but I'll go with what the consensus of astronomers say on this.

ParaNet: What are the pitfalls involved in science and the exploration of parapsychology?

Mitchell: I no longer even use the term "para". We start with the assumption that what we are dealing with is normal phenomena that is not yet explained. There is really no "para" science, no supernatural. At least the modeling that I use in my book says that this is all explainable when we eventually understand the unknown.

ParaNet: I applaud you for your fortitude, but the one problem I keep coming back to is that it seems that there is still a big stigma related to scientific thinking on unexplained phenomena.

Mitchell: True. Let's be careful about what we call unexplained. We still have many, many enigmas that aren't resolved. But what I'm talking about here are those relating to consciousness and mind. We're still stuck in many ways back in Newtonian reality that mind is a secondary product of physical nature. I suggest there is really a single reality. There is not, as Descartes said, mind over here and matter over there. Mind and matter are two faces of the same reality. Most of the paradoxes that cause us to call things paranormal and strange simply disappear, and it falls out into a pretty nice system of thought. It's also testable. We'll either find out it's right or it's wrong.

ParaNet: Do you think most people are willing to accept the outcome?

Mitchell: Since we started the institute twenty some years ago, the group of people we now call the postmoderns or cultural creatives, and that's the constituency that is interested in the kinds of things we're talking about - seeking new answers - have increased from less that 2% of the population to over 24%, representing about 44 million adult other two groups are called the Americans. The traditionalists, which is just what it sounds like, and the modernists, which are the classical materialists, involved with corporate economics, the sort of yuppie group that has dominated thinking here for the last twenty-five or thirty years. All those groups are now roughly equal size, roughly 23-24%, and the cultural creatives are increasing very rapidly, the other two are decreasing significantly. So the people looking at the solutions we're talking about are increasing quite nicely.

Caller: Carl Sagan is very dismissive of alien contact. How do you respond to that, and if you have proof, have you brought it forward to the scientific community?

Mitchell: I don't think we have smoking gun proof. But what has changed? In the 1950's, the great astronomer Fred Hoyle said that 500 years ago, Copernicus showed us that we were not the geometric center of the universe, but we still think we're the biological center. And even when I went to the moon 25 years ago we still thought we were the biological center. I think those notions are falling by the wayside. Do we have proof? No. However, what is changing, very rapidly, is the cosmological understanding of how we came to be. What is emerging as the model is that we live in a self-organizing, intelligent, trial-and-error that's evolving, that started with the Big Bang, that continues to evolve, both in its structure and in our knowing about it. Breaking it down into what exists and how do we know is the subject of my book. It's quite a different matter to say we're in a self-organizing, learning, evolving universe than what we used to think, even 75 years ago. The whole model is changing markedly. Now, Carl Sagan is correct in saying that we don't have smoking gun evidence of other life in the universe. But the materialist model, based on early quantum mechanics and Newtonian science is simply proving to be wrong and flawed.

ParaNet: Conspiracy theories are everywhere, but what do you say to things like the Brookings Institute report of the 60's? Did NASA set policy, and if they did, could there be an agency out there that's calling the shots, that may or may not know something?

Mitchell: That's probably too much of a conspiracy theory. I think that what has really happened, is that since the early days of the so-called Roswell incident, when we were just coming out of WWII, when military and secrecy and the Soviet threat (we were just entering the Cold War) were very real, and national security problems were very real, and high classifications surrounded all of that activity, a lot has happened. It's moved into the black budget, it has been spun off with some contractors looking at it, some military people looking at it. It's almost a quasi-private activity now, and the danger in that is that black budgets are not really being monitored carefully by our Congress. They can't, just by their nature. So we have something here that's quasi-private, quasi-military, quasi-intelligence that's not really being controlled in the best way.

ParaNet: It's a monster.

Mitchell: You've said it nicely. It is a monster. And we need to open this up, whatever it is.

ParaNet: In your book, you mention the struggle between the military side and the civilian side of NASA. [Former administrator Richard] Truly was more into the peaceful exploration of space, while [current administrator Dan] Goldin is more militaristic.

Mitchell: Well, he [Goldin] came out of the military-industrial complex. I personally want to follow Eisenhower's dictum when NASA was established - NASA was established for the peaceful exploration of space. And we just have this natural tension between the military side, who wants to manage space, and those of us who really want it under civilian control.

ParaNet: You grew up in Roswell, NM. How do you view the so-called Roswell incident?

Mitchell: Well, I know Jesse Marcel, Jr. personally. I know many of those people and have talked with many of the people who were involved in that. I was just a lad at the time and didn't know what to think about it and kind of dismissed it like everybody else who wasn't knowledgeable. I now believe that there was a massive coverup. I now believe that these folks were telling the truth as they saw it and that they were put under an enormous amount of pressure to keep quiet about it.

ParaNet: So do you think that something extraterrestrial crashed there?

Mitchell: Well, there's something that needs to be opened up. Let's say on one side it could very well be extraterrestrial, but whatever it is, the truth is not out yet.

ParaNet: When you were at NASA, how much did you talk about the Roswell case?

Mitchell: Oh, we didn't talk about it at all. NASA's official position in those days was this stuff doesn't exist, don't worry about it, we weren't briefed on it. We were going to the moon like a bear going over the mountain, to see what he could see - for discovery, for science, for the sheer exploration of it and because our president gave us that as a mission. Any thought of whether there were extraterrestrials simply wasn't on the table.

Caller: I was wondering if Edgar saw any unusual formations on the moon. I saw Fred Haise when he came to Weber State and he said they only came within about 80 miles and he didn't see anything.

Mitchell: Well, we saw a lot of strange and interesting things, but not strange in the sense of unexplainable or abnormal. As an explorer and a budding lunar geologist, it was exciting to be there and to do the science and just to poke around and find out what's there, but as far as what we're really talking about here, no there's nothing really strange.

ParaNet: Where is all of this headed?

Mitchell: Oh, to greater understanding - to be able to answer the questions of who are we, how did we get here, where are we going and why and what is our responsibility in all of this? We're not just objects in an inanimate, unknown universe. We have a responsibility here it appears. We seem to represent the forefront of intelligent organization, at least in our sector of the universe, and that's a heavy thought.

ParaNet: Are you happy with the space program as it stands today?

Mitchell: Oh, it needs regrouping, it needs reorganizing. We really need to use the space program at this moment to help focus on Earth's problems. We have some severe problems here. And eventually, we'll go back to the moon and on to Mars and the rest of the solar system. It's our destiny to do so, but right now I really think we need to get our act together on Earth.

ParaNet: How can people get an autographed copy of your book The Way of the Explorer?

Mitchell: Send $35 in check or money order to me at P.O. Box 6728, Lakeworth, FL 33461 and I'll autograph and dedicate the book.

The ParaNet Continuum Radio Program

The radio show has finally moved into new studios, owned by ParaNet, with state-of-the art computer-controlled, digital sound production facilities, top notch recording equipment, and more telephone lines. We have also begun offering Internet Relay Chats during the show as well as an occasional foray onto CompuServe's MYSTERIES forum live chat room. And we're producing the show live at Pour Joe's coffeehouse in Denver. Locals can listen to the show via the stereo system in the coffeehouse and are welcome to come back into the production room after the show to see how it's produced.

Plans are also in the works for longer shows, although we'll still be on the satellite for only one hour. We keep running out of time with many of our interesting guests and have decided to keep the show going longer occasionally and then to make tapes of the two-hour or three-hour show available for purchase.

Financially, the show continues to gain steam, although your contributions and purchases are still needed to help pay the bills. Satellite uplink fees and Switched-56 phone lines, as well as the standard incoming 800 lines and other production expenses are quite high. If you want to keep this show on the air, please contribute or order our products! We do accept Mastercard and Visa now to make it that much easier for you.

As one of the few who gets to see the UFO phenomenon from the inside, I'm often asked "So, what's really going on?" With this column, I hope to answer that question.

In Carl Sagan's book "The Deemon-Haunted World: Science as a Candle in the Dark", he states on page 127 "Of course, as enthusuasts for extraterrestrial visitations are quick to remind me, there's another interpretation of these historical parallels: Aliens, they say, have always been visiting us, poking at us, stealing our sperms and eggs, impregnating us. In earlier times we recognized them as gods, demons, fairies, or spirits; only now do we understand that it's aliens who've been diddling us all these millennia. Jacques Vallee has made such arguments. But why then are there virtually no reports of flying saucers prior to 1947? Why is it that none of the world's major religions uses saucers as icons of the Why no warnings about the dangers of high Why isn't this genetic experiment, technology then? whatever its objective, completed by now - thousands of years or more after its initiation by beings supposedly of vastly superior technological attainments? Why are we in such trouble if the breeding program is designed to improve our lot?"

Sagan's thrust is that UFOs are nothing more than stories that have taken on a life of their own, much like a story told at parties, in which a story is told at one end of a chain, and by the time it gets to the other end of the room it bears no resemblance to the original. While this certainly can account for some of the stories, it certainly doesn't account for all of them. Let's try to answer all of the questions Sagan raises in the previous paragraph.

•Why are there virtually no reports of flying saucers prior to 1947? Is Sagan kidding? 1947 may have marked the beginning of the modern UFO era with the flying vehicles over Mount Rainier described by Kenneth Arnold that "looked like saucers skipping over water" and of course the Roswell Incident, but there are many reports of UFOs throughout history. The Fortean Society published an account of a UFO dating back to the 1700's. The Tunguska event, early in this century, for which Sagan himself has postulated several possibilities, remains unidentified. The Bible has numerous stories which could be construed as UFO visitations, particularly Ezekiel. Perhaps the operative words in Sagan's question are "flying saucers". The most obvious answer to his question is that people didn't call them flying saucers back then either because the concept of flying was unfamiliar to them (only birds and clouds could fly), or because they didn't look like saucers. Whatever the reason, it is rather incredible that a scientist of Sagan's stature would make such a ludicrous statement.

- Why no "saucer" icons to aliens in world religions? Maybe Carl has neglected to read any of Zechariah Sitchin's books, which detail numerous icons to heavenly visitors the Annunaki "those who from heaven to Earth came" in Africa, Asia, South America, North America, virtually everywhere, dating back thousands of years. Whether or not you agree with Sitchin's conclusions, the evidence is there that religious groups did create icons representing unusual phenomena. Perhaps the halos around angels depicted in so many religious paintings dating back two thousand years are the saucer-shapes Sagan is looking for.
- Why no warnings about the dangers of high technology? Excuse, me? Has he not studied anything of Nostradamus? Revelation? Our literature is so full of prophetic warnings it is pathetic!
- Why isn't the genetic experiment over? Well, a) maybe it's not a genetic experiment, or b) maybe aliens have a longer attention span than we do. Really. This question is an insult to our intelligence. Obviously not everyone in the UFO community believes we are being visited by other civilizations for purposes of cross-breeding or replenishment of their dwindling gene pool.
- Why are we in such trouble if they're here to help? Again, Sagan has latched onto one small phase of Ufology and assumed everyone believes it.

So Sagan is full of it. Let's ask some more fitting questions of our own, shall we?

Why does our government constantly lie to us? They've gotten themselves into a rather tight fix, much like the little boy who cried wolf. If you lie often enough and get caught at it, eventually people stop listening to you. That is certainly what has happened with our military and much of our elected government. It's almost to the point that if the government announced that we had made contact with aliens, no one would believe them!

How can the scientific community consistently dismiss so many eyewitness accounts from credible observers that something funny is going on? Does science demand obstinance from its adherents? Maybe the reason our scientific advances seem to plod along is related to the very scientific method we hold so dear! Scientists have always been stubborn about their pet theories, despite pretending to use the scientific method. What exactly is the scientific method? Quite simply, its this: 1) Observe a phenomenon,

2) make a hypothesis about its cause, 3) test the hypothesis through experiment, 4) draw conclusions. If the conclusions refute the hypothesis, go back to step two. If not, design more experiments until there is enough confidence to publish the conclusions, then seek peer review. Has the UFO phenomenon met the conditions for the scientific method? If it has failed, it is because step three is awful hard to do with random phenomena. Therefore, many are accused of jumping to conclusions with insufficient data. But science often does the same thing, and there have been some incredible advances in technology because of a "leap of faith" made by a scientist who had insufficient evidence to support a pet theory.

Why is it so impossible to travel to the stars? After the release of the movie Independence Day, The Denver Post published an article which quoted a Loveland mathematician (and member of the Front Range Skeptics) as saying "to travel here, aliens not only would have to suspend the laws of physics, they would have to violate what is absolute in our universe - the speed of light." Hello? While I found the movie flawed in many ways, this is not an area I would have attacked. Do I need to even say it? They would have to violate the laws of physics as we currently understand them. Why is it so hard to drill this concept into a skeptic's head? Does he really believe we know all there is to know about physics and the composition of the universe? And we won't even mention black holes, which Penrose and Hawking have described as violating our known laws of physics at the In any case, it is not even necessary to event horizon. violate the laws of physics to travel to the stars. We could do so today if we wanted to. It would cost a fortune, but we could do it using ion engines that would accelerate a spaceship to, say, 10% of the speed of light, then decelerate it as it neared another star system. As long as allowance was made for the increase in mass as the ship accelerates, and provided that we deal with waste management and food, we have the technology today to launch a mission to the stars. But it is also more likely that long before our multi-generational ship reached its destination, technology would have allowed an even faster ship to overtake it! Someday we will travel to the stars simply because they are there. And we will more than likely figure out how to beat that speed of light problem.

Assume for a moment that there had been a civilization on Mars. We would have already announced our presence in rather bold terms. We landed a ship on the surface and started taking some soil samples. We poured chemicals on it looking for life. Had we pulled any insects out of the soil, we would likely have killed them. We don't have Star Trek style "cloaking" technology. Had there been anyone there not technically inclined, and seeing a fiery descent of an unknown object, they might have been tempted to declare that God had sent an angel (or a devil) down from heaven to reward (or punish) them. They might veryu well have proceeded to destroy the spacecraft, something that we sent a billion dollars making. Someday, when we travel to the stars, we may want to remain hidden from the locals, if there are any. We may not want to barge in, planting the flag and announcing that we are here to make friends! We may want to study them first. Is it so unusual, then, to think that if we have been discovered by others, they might want to do the same with us? I think not!

So what is going on? Look at the multitude of things we have going on in our world today: abductions, cattle mutilations, UFO sightings, secret military projects, patriot groups, cults, political intrigue, AIDS, terrorism, racial hatred, religious wars, environmental disasters (natural and man-made), and good old-fashioned greed, lust and power-mongering. Is it any wonder that we can't get to the bottom of the UFO mystery?

I believe that there is a good case for the Earth having been visited by non-human intelligence. I won't call it extra-terrestrial, because there are many other possibilities. 1 don't believe that Earthlings are serving only as genetic material for sex-starved aliens. I don't believe that most of our elected government has any more a clue than we do about the nature of the UFO phenomenon. I do believe that several militaries of the world, including those of at least the U.S. and former Soviet Union, have resorted to intimidation and even mind control of witnesses to something very secret, in violation of people's human rights. I also believe that many groups with a vested interest in keeping the UFO mystery mysterious have deliberately confused the issue with misinformation. What is the basis for this vested interest? What has always been the source of this? Money and power. If anyone does indeed know whether aliens have been here or are here, they are in a position of power by virtue of that knowledge. As long as no one else knows, they can maintain that power and use it to manipulate events so as to increase their power and wealth. In this respect, not much has changed over the last ten thousand years. I do not believe that NASA cares whether there are aliens or not. If there are, they haven't apparently interfered with our space missions too badly. If there aren't, then the space program is just what it appears to be - a valid scientific attempt to learn about space travel. I don't believe that thousands of people are abducted every night (as current numbers suggest), but that more likely there is a psychological phenomenon occurring in the majority of cases. Finally, rest assured, when I get the front bumper off of a UFO, I'll personally put it on Sagan's doorstep!

DESPERATELY SEEKING ALIENS: PITFALLS ALONG THE PATH TO A "FIRST CONTACT SCIENCE"

by Gregory J. Wheeler, Ph.D. and Scott R. Scribner, M.A.

Fear. Not the mass panic so strikingly imaged in the blockbuster action movie "Independence Day", but the soul-chilling terror of a solitary individual alone in the blackest night. Fear so great it can either paralyze or send you running for your life. Fear that breaks every courageous resolve. Fear that transforms a person forever.

This is how Whitley Strieber describes his fear in his book Breakthrough: The Next Step. No psychology can do justice to alien abduction narratives (AAbNs) unless it can address this most primal of human experiences. Understanding the accounts of Whitley Strieber and others also provides a paradigm for explaining the persistent appeal of the horror genre in literature, of which he is an expert craftsman. Standing on this same precipice with him is another interpreter of "experiencer" contact, Dr Courtney Brown, author of the new book "Cosmic Voyage". We might propose that the literary horror and the "experiencer" terror are one and the same: the fragile evanescence of life confronting the completely unknown. We will contrast these two views as we pursue the current concept of "alien abduction." What methods can we employ to grapple with these claims of ETs among us, as we try to understand those who claim special knowledge about this planet's greatest mystery?

Until Strieber's recent book, his battle with fear seemed like a backstage disturbance, an unavoidable but natural consequence of encountering an "evil...terrific, oppressive power" he calls "the visitors." It is now apparent that his works are a documentary of a personal battle to maintain contact with an experience of the "unknown other", in the face of the concomitant resurgence of terror that it brings. This is why Whitley leaves his mountain cabin at midnight and climbs into a deep bat-cave without a light. Not as a dimwitted exercise in masochism, but as a challenge to his own fear. In Whitley's words, "It's not the cave, it's the effort to overcome my fear that matters." (p.72)

To what end? Surely these kinds of personal encounters with terror are a mainstay of human existence. Just as the mastery of physical skills can drive people to Olympian performances, so also others are consumed with the drive to obliterate their vulnerability. The River Styx flows on the horizon for all of us, visitors or not, and surely one of our most pressing tasks as sentient beings on this planet is to comprehend our own mortality. So for Strieber, this encounter with "the visitors" is sought eagerly. However, when it occurs, Strieber honestly reports his reactions: fleeing with desperate speed or confronting the visitors with vicious, violent reactions (shotgunning one's guru being considered a slight overreaction in most New Age circles). Why endure such terror if not to hone one's mettle? Isn't this a form of "pushing the envelope" common to men of speed and power? Whitley NEEDS the visitors, just as Scott Crossfield needed his X-15.

Whitley says, "When you are at the very height of strangeness, when you are so far from your human meanings that you feel as if you are on the other side of the universe, I can assure you from experience that you will encounter yourself." (p. 93) This need to "encounter yourself" is a profound motivator buried deep within the seemingly external and fearsome encounters with "the visitors."

But need this encounter be consciously sought? In contrast to the many who push the envelope and go out seeking the terror, there are those seemingly passive individuals who do not seek an "encounter" but are struck while just going about their lives. Strieber explains that there is a logic at work here too. Life leaves not one of its own undisturbed. All must "encounter" that which comes as a visitor in the night. It takes a loud "noise" to awaken the somnolent from the sleep of what the Hindus call "maya", or illusion. This is a well known concept among mystical traditions and therefore a comparison cannot be avoided. If one seeks out a transformational experience, if one advocates to others the same experience and interpretive worldview, and if one then takes up a position inside that worldview from which to gaze at the uninitiated, surely no offense can be taken if an observer concludes a spiritual tradition is in the making.

If he walks and talks like a mystic, let's call him mystical--or a shaman. He joins the pantheon of mystics with rational explanations for their experiences, from Pythagoras to, well, Strieber. This is not to minimize the importance of the self-transformational task of consciousness. It may be the central dynamic hiding behind fear and its off-spring, paranoia. Everyday consciousness is the brittle shell surrounding the nascent gamete, the "new man" that Strieber recalls in mentioning Sri Aurobindo, "who believed that mankind was a transitional species, destined to literally be re-created physically in a new form." (p. 75)

During long-term psychotherapy (the serious kind rejected as too unprofitable by "managed care" companies), psychological growth can reach an abrupt halt after some months or even years of progress. A barrier of immense proportions is encountered. This barrier is surrounded by frightening gargoyles of the mind, and only if the therapeutic alliance between patient and therapist is strong can progress resume. First, though, the patient must pass through "the valley of the shadow of death" whose foremost gargoyle is fear.

For Whitley Strieber, this confrontation with his own fear is the key to opening the door to the visitors. From a psychotherapist's perspective, this very difficult recounting of a central dynamic in Strieber's psyche makes sense out of his choice to become a horror genre writer. Now that direction has taken a new turn, and the visitors are The Great Master who deigns to aide a desperate disciple in his battle against psychic terrors. In this case, the visitors have come to scare the last wit out of Whitley. In the process, Whitley achieves enlightenment, or at least believes the path is now open to him:

"To surrender by becoming strong, to transform our evil by understanding it, to become a species whose consciousness transcends the boundaries of the world, to gain control over the very form that physical reality takes, to ride the winds of time--all these things are possible to us (p. 216). And that is the paradigm that seems to work its way through much of the Mack/Hopper/Strieber accounts. When touched by the Master's hand, a process begins. The disciple will either emerge a higher, nobler being, or descend into the pits of mental illness with no light to guide them. It is the choice of the narrator. How many will emerge transformed?

This process of encountering one's terror, of facing the "evil" other, the visitor into the routine consciousness of everyday life, is the essence of the shaman's journey. And perhaps the same paradigm can be said to be a part of breaking any status quo, leading a person into depth psychotherapy, spiritual journeys of every kind, difficult adventures, and even through unavoidable tragedies.

We are very sympathetic with Whitley's approach to the human predicament, but we must conclude that this is not what we mean by a "scientific ufology."

Perhaps the term ufology is ready for the scrapheap. The experiences Whitley describes are very little of the "flying object" variety. By this time in history there is little unidentified about a helicopter or a saucer shaped metallic vehicle in the sky or on the ground. It is rather the mystery behind these "objects," and their origins that intrigue us. These "unidentified human experiences" are the artifacts of encounter.

That is why we are advocating the abandonment of the term "ufology." We propose a new discipline: First Contact Science (or FCS for brevity).

The broad scope suggested by FCS would include everything that is currently considered ufological: UFOs buzzing cities, blasting out cryptic symbols in corn and wheat fields, abducting various people at random, mutilating cattle, and so on. FCS must go beyond the domain of so-called traditional ufologists, to include every scientific investigation which seeks answers about non-human sentience: ongoing astronomy projects such as the search for Sun-Earth type systems, SETI, and even local space exploration itself would be part of this growing planetary awakening to the possibility that we are not alone in the Universe.

FCS must be a discipline, because without the controls of a scientific community, the experiences of encounter become the private domain of an interpreter to the outside world. This results in the constant revival of a peculiar brand of ufology which makes no claims to consensus understanding, but only to the explication of hidden mysteries. This too is the oldest of traditions--not a doorway to investigating the possibility of alien contact, but a frank descent into the murky caves of religion.

This more evangelical mystical approach is seen in Dr. Brown's book (1996). He tells us on page 1 that the book contains "a detailed examination of two societies of known intelligent extraterrestrial life." We hope some other readers besides ourselves will also stumble over the word "known," then ask, "known to whom?" and "how?" Unfortunately, the answers are not encouraging. This "knowledge" is but another variety of occult (hidden) knowledge open only to those who have been initiated into various higher mysteries, specifically Transcendental Meditation (TM), out-of-body experience (OOBE Robert Monroe Institute variety), and "scientific remote viewing" (SRV) under the alleged auspices of the recently (and embarrassingly) cancelled "psychic warfare" program of the military intelligence (sic) complex (Rickard, 1996).

With this book, Dr. Brown joins a fraternity of social scientists (including John Mack and David Jacobs) who are, knowingly or not, trashing the possibility of any intelligent discourse on the subject of unusual experiences and narratives about them. More on this in a future article when we discuss David Jacobs' interview about his own upcoming book "Grey Area". Beside the social scientists (who are uncomfortable with peer review and claim ad nauseam that "establishment science" is just too hidebound to accept their "revealed truth"), Whitley Strieber and Budd Hopkins appear to constitute the artistic contingent, persons who express their exploration in images.

Some readers may feel that we do not give Brown's techniques a fair hearing, perhaps through ignorance. We have been trained in (and used) all three of these techniques (and many others). TM is a very interesting meditation method, but we have found that its effects are not as unique as its proponents claim and the TM organization has occasionally presented views about weeding out the "spiritually unfit" that we find alarming. Robert Monroe's book has been available for two decades ago and we practiced a number of OOBE methods with interesting results. Although neither of us can claim Dr. Brown's military SRV pedigree (it is not clear from the book whether he was actually in the service), one of us (Scribner) reports a long personal history of clairvoyant ("remote viewing") experiences, such as recently knowing immediately when a close relative experienced a heart problem 3000 miles away. He also took Michael Harner's training in "shamanic journeying", which he finds to be similar to the SRV techniques Brown describes.

Why do we go to the trouble of claiming to know what Dr. Brown is talking about? Because he also claims that these techniques showed him that Martians are living under the State of New Mexico, and he claims to be revealing this "fact" to the public under the color of "scientific" authority. Unfortunately, these stories are as old as the hills (much older than Betty and Barney, anyway) and have been making the rounds of UFO "true believer" groups since Roswell. This is the same tale that drove Dr. Paul Bennewitz mad (Thompson, 1995). No, that doesn't make it untrue but let's just say it never goes anywhere except into more and more books.

Dr. Brown also presents an extraterrestrially revealed anthropology which (big surprise) is old Gnostic theology: the body is just a shell and we are really "subspace" beings. In earlier eras, it would be called "ether", "spirit", "ch'i", or other names for undefinable stuff. In the age of Star Trek, subspace is in. In 1964, we asked Isaac Asimov whether he thought that such a pervasive sci-fi staple as "subspace" would ever be found. He spread his hands, shrugged, and said "Who knows?". So are Strieber and Brown writers of science or fiction? You must decide.

We find "Cosmic Voyage" interesting for both cultural and personal reasons. Culturally, with the end of the Twentieth Century at hand, we find the inevitable cyclic return of a perennial philosophy with a millenarian edge. On the personal side, one of us remembers spending some of the best times of our lives engaged in remote viewing and conversing with Martians in 1960, when we were ten years old and still believed that the fate of the universe was in our hands. Decades later, as grown men, we have come to know we are not alone; there are others here to provide help dealing with a limitless universe. Some come to this through religion. But for others, still wrestling with the boundary between the inner and outer worlds, there are the paths of Whitley Strieber and Courtney Brown.

By all means, search and question. But take good care of the kids and don't sell the house just yet.

This is ParaNet's News Column. It's called Random Walk after the mathematical concept in which the direction of each successive move in a sequence of movements is determined entirely at random. In other words, this is a random assortment of interesting news tidbits culled from the World Wide Web, news wires and magazine stories.

- Astronaut Gordon Cooper comments on UFOs. Astronaut Gordon Cooper reported seeing an "armada" of UFOs flying extremely high over Europe in 1951 He sent a report in, and the analysis came back months later that what they saw was probably high flying seed pods. Cooper went on to say that in 1957, he and others saw a UFO land on the dry lake bed at Edwards AFB. He said that it put down three little landing gears and landed and that a film crew captured the event. When they got fairly close, it lifted off, put the landing gears away and took off at a high rate of speed. He said the film was sent to Washington and "I don't know if anyone has seen it since."

Brian Wood, producer/director of the radio show and editor/publisher of Continuum magazine will be section leader. Greg Wheeler, Ph.D., MICAP's Director of Investigations, psychologist and abduction researcher will also contribute. ParaNet expects to run live chats there during the radio show at least once a month. Interesting files and other ParaNet products will be available in the libraries. Now CompuServe members will have exclusive access to ParaNet apart from the Usenet and Fidonet newsgroups that are also run by ParaNet.
- New Organization Advocates Preparedness for Catastrophic Earth Changes. From "The Richter 11 Project": "In July, 1994, pieces of a large comet collided with Jupiter. We don't know what this means for Earth, because we don't know enough about how the solar system works. We can't be sure if the odd weather patterns we're experiencing are not a result of extraordinary reactions from Jupiter affecting Earth. Could that collision have disturbed the orbits of some of the tens of thousands of asteroids between Jupiter and Earth? Could other undetected waves and reactions from Jupiter have nudged some of them into Earth-intersecting orbits? If an asteroid six miles wide crashed into Earth, it would be like 15 billion 'Hiroshima' atomic bombs exploding at one time. That equals the energy of a Richter 11 earthquake. The Richter 11 Project was created to focus peoples' attention on the possibility of similar impacts on Earth. The many people who survive such an impact will have to know how to cope and rebuild. Such a collision might mean having to live without the comforts of electrical technology, or the ability to grow food for many months or even years. By reviving hand-operated technologies, and planning to store food, tools and technical and cultural knowledge in households and selected places around the world, people could rebuild without starting from nothing. Thinking 'R-11' encourages people to live fully day-to-day, and enjoy people, animals, the land, seas and natural wonders as they are now. Any 'Earth changes' could make our landscapes and civilizations look and be very different." For more information, contact (303)754-2941. Be sure to mention that you read about it on ParaNet's web

- Air Force Avoids Answering USA Today Question. Aviation Week & Space Technology, the leading magazine for aerospace engineers and others in the aviation industry, reports that the Air Force has been officially queried by USA Today regarding its contingency plans if the U.S. is invaded by aliens from space. The inquiry was triggered by the new movie Independence Day. True to form, the Air Force said it would "forego extensive planning pending verification of the existence of aliens." This, of course, was not the question put to them and can only contribute to further mistrust of the military.
- Skeptics Monitor Pseudoscience. The World Skeptics Congress gathered in Amherst, New York on June 20th. This was the first worldwide meeting of skeptics, and was hosted by CSICOP, Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal. Phil Klass, one of Ufology's arch-debunkers, said "If one of your friends or relatives says they believe in flying saucers, don't be surprised. The surprising thing is that everyone doesn't believe in them with television the way it is." The skeptics blame the media for popularizing irrational beliefs in ghosts, aliens and psychics. They have formed a new group, the Council for Media Integrity, to monitor television for its portrayal of science. Paul Kurtz, organizer of the conference, said "If you look at these shows, they make it seem as if what they're portraying is real."
- Political Strategists Avoid Hillary's Paranormal Exercises. Brigid Schulte, in a story written for Knight-Ridder News Service, reports that "Ever since excerpts appeared from Bob Woodward's new book 'The Choice' detailing the first lady's sort of personal Psychic Friends Network, the tabloids have had a heyday. 'Hillary's Guru!' the headlines screamed, conjuring up visions of crystal balls and mysterious knocks in the East Room. But most political strategists are taking a pass. For two reasons: One, she's not the president. And two, they know a bunch of Americans really believe this stuff."

- Galileo Looks at Jupiter's Moon. Seven years after launch, NASA's glitch-plagued Galileo spacecraft plunged to within 517 miles of Ganymede, Jupiter's largest moon, capturing images as small as 33 feet across. Nine of Galileo's 10 instruments were trained on Ganymede, which is 3/4 the size of Mars and the largest satellite in the solar system. It took 35 minutes for radio signals to travel the 400 million miles to Earth. The first computer-enhanced photos will be available July 10, due in part to the painfully slow data rate, which was necessitated by failure of the high-gain antenna on the spacecraft. Images will arrive at a rate of two-three per day. The spacecraft now begins an 18-month program of 11 elliptical orbits of Jupiter.
- Independence Day Movie Reactions. National Director Chandra Chandler of the Colorado Springs-based UFO Institute said "My biggest problem with movies like this is they see an alien presence as the enemy, something to be defeated. If they wanted to take over, they would have done it 500 years ago." Skeptic Larry Sarner, a Loveland mathematician, computer programmer and member of the Front Range Skeptics, said "There's plety of scientific reasons why it's less than likely that space aliens exist." He explained that the closest star is four light years away and the closest planet outside the solar system is 13 light years away. To travel here, he said, aliens would not only have to suspend the laws of physics, they would have to violate what is absolute in our universe - the speed of light. At NORAD, spokesman Scott Johnson said "We don't do UFOs." NORAD was completely obliterated in the movie along with most major cities of the world. San Luis Valley observer Chris O'Brien, who has a new book out titled "The Mysterious Valley", said "science fiction flicks appear to have shifted from the warm, friendly portrayals of 'Close Encounters' and 'E.T.' to viewing the off-planet intelligence as being extremely hostile and aggressive." CSETI, The Center for the Study of Extraterrestrial Intelligence, which is headed by Dr. Steven Greer, said "The Center...feels that the media and entertainment industry are increasingly involved with potentially dangerous and inflammatory portrayals of extraterrestrial life. This trend is dangerous in light of the real likelihood that we are not alone in the universe, and that a disclosure of this fact could be linked in people's minds to the frightening psychology of 'alien invasion'." Greer added that "the media should exhibit more restraint in these portrayals...and should also endeavor to investigate the growing scientific evidence that extraterrestrial civilizations have made their way to Earth." MICAP Director Brian Wood said "Independence Day has the awesome special effects and cinematography we have come to expect in big-budget films, along with a good cast and interesting plot. However, the science used to save the planet that was used by Jeff Goldblum in the movie was clearly not well thought out." Wood agreed with the skeptics that suspension of disbelief was carried a bit too far. He added "The panic depicted in this movie, that begins before any hostile actions are taken by the aliens, will not help UFO activists convince Congress and the military that release of government documents regarding UFOs is in the public's best interest."

 Brazil UFOs? In Varginha, Brazil, on January 30, according to National UFO News, a woman saw children throwing stones at something at the edge of a ravine. When she went to see, she was horrified to see a creature with large red eyes trying to huddle down. Local firefighters then reportedly grabbed the creature and drove it to the military school in Tres Coracoes. On Wednesday, June 5, 1996, several UFO groups held a news conference in Brazil. Claudeia Covo, an engineer and president of the Instituto Nacional de Investigações de Fenomenos Aerospaciais (INFA) described the reported Varginha retrieval as "certainly the most extraordinary thing we have ever heard about, and we have lots of reports of the UFO apparitions. It was a real complex operation involving military personnel as well as civilians and resulted in the capture of unidentified biological creatures." Brazilian ufologist Vitorio Pacaccini said that he has the testimony of an army officer was directly involved in the operation and described in detail everything that happened. The Brazilian army denies that any retrieval took place.

Not exactly true. The US Gov't does acknowledge the existence of the Area51 installation as a "test area" for "advanced aircraft". That is all they will admit to though. They have admitted to its existence for about a year - maybe two. A minor point, it's true, but UFO researchers need to attempt to get all their facts exactly right. Credibility is difficult enough to come by even then, as we all know. It will be interesting to see if any of the X-33 development ends up taking place out at Area51. [The X-33 is the "next generation" replacement for the Space Shuttle. The contract was just awarded today to Lockheed-Martin's "Skunk Works" (who brought you the SR-71, etc), beating out the McDonnell-Douglas Delta Clipper, and the Rockwell entry.] Therefore, they may be conditioning us. but they're not ready to admit to anything yet.

I dunno about all this "conditioning conspiracy" speculation going around. Personally, I think that Hollywood, and the ad agencies simply look out in marketplace, and observe what is "selling" at the moment, and then try and capitalize on whatever that is to promote their own agenda (read, products). Ever since the "Star Wars" movies, CE3K, and so forth, it has been pretty obvious that "SF sells". And, if you use "aliens" in ads, they work for a LOT less money than (say) Michael Jordan does. Just because there are ads that use Godzilla or cars that talk, it does not follow that we can expect to see either appear in downtown Los Angeles anytime soon [well ... maybe: in LA ...:-)]. Nor do I think we are being "conditioned" to expect either of those possibilities to actually happen. Similarly, with UFO's and aliens. Though I'd like to be wrong about it ...

Don't be silly. They won't recognize Area 51, because it would open them to all kinds of lawsuits for chemical and toxic poisoning of workers, not to speak of radioactivity from debris buried out there.

Subject: Real Science Fiction: Star Trek, NOT

Independence Day

I love science fiction - remember 15 years ago, when movies used to line people up for blocks? Star Wars, Star Trek, Superman, 2001 / 2010, Indiana Jones, Dune, Close Encounters? Movies that made you drool for the sequel?

WHY DOESN'T THAT HAPPEN

ANYMORE????????????

The only decent sci-fi movie in the last several years was The Abyss. Now we have crap like Independence Day - just another Die Hard in space. An attempt to hide its extremely poor storywriting with tons of special effects and famous actors.

What happened to sci-fi movies that were true "sagas" movies that created awe and wonder and curiosity? Movies that presented the human race in a good light, gave us principles and characters to look up to, like Star Trek?

This is what happened - Hollywood stopped assuming we had intelligence. It stopped assuming we wanted a carefully-developed story. It stopped assuming that we wanted to think. So now, we get crap like Eraser and Twister - movies for the brain-dead. Movies for people who "want it all" with absolutely no depth, acting talent or complexity.

Any other thoughts on this issue? START BITCHING ABOUT IT!!!!!

>In the scenario described above, or anything remotely like it (i.e. that the aliens are trying to conquer the world and enslave or destroy humanity) I am sure we would all know about it at once, because the military leaders of the world would be marching into the halls of their legislatures, screaming for massive appropriations to purchase/design/build the wonderful high-tech gizmos we need to destroy the aliens.

Appealing to authority aren't you? Given the past and present history of "secret" black budget appropriations, including and not limited to, Guatemala, El Salvador, School of the Americas, MK-ULTRA/COINTELPRO, JFK, radiation and drug experiments on civilians and military personnel and countless others, how can you say that we would know about flesh-eating aliens, especially if you expect the very people those whose job it is to protect national security at all costs to hand you this information on a silver-platter? Highly imaginative and totally impractical and irrational to even expect such a thing to happen.

>People who imagine aliens of bad intent just don't give humans enough credit. While we can be incredibly short-sighted, while we are often suspicious of one another when we should be cooperating, while we are sometimes just plain stupid, I simply cannot imagine any animal in the Galaxy meaner than man. The one thing the human animal excels at, in every epoch of our history, is figuring out new ways to kill the things. I mean look at Bosnia, Rwanda, Somalia, Bergen-Belsen, Auschwitz, Treblinka, the Battle of Somme. If we can be this cruel to human beings, imagine what we'd be like toward another species.

Most of the world lives in dire poverty. The rich get richer and the poor get poorer. Didn't you learn that in law school? I suppose you are talking about "us" as in those who can afford to be connected to the internet.

>Also, we are tough as nails. Most of us live in comfortable surroundings and we think dirty sheets are an inconvenience we simply can't live with, but look at the record. Darwin and Fitzroy found perfectly naked humans on Tierra del Fuego. This island is at 58 degrees South Latitude. If it were in the Northern Hemisphere it would be about the same latitude as Juneau, Alaska or Stavanger, Norway. There is little vegetation and less animal life on Tierra del Fuego, but the Fuegians were able to eke out a living on the volcanic slopes. No other animal, except rats, have our range. The natural habitat of Man stretches from Point Barrow, Alaska, to the Sahara Desert, to Equatorial Africa. A human will thrive in countries where a billy goat would starve. No climate is too harsh for humans, no food too vile or indigestible.

Nice argument but lay off the generalizations.

>Ecce Homo! Behold the Man. Burnt by the sun, soaked by the rain, frozen by the snows; dining on grubs and worms and elk and trout, eating just about every kind of plant, except for wood. No natural enemies except his fellow man and deadly to every creature he meets. The mightiest animals, the elephant, the rhinoceros, the tiger, the polar bear and even the great whales have been driven to the brink of extinction by Man. If it turned out that aliens were eating human flesh, within six weeks of the news getting out, the tables would be turned and they'd be treating us to lunch. Within a year, we'd have crossed the Galaxy back to their home planet and I guarantee you there would be no alien equivalent of Brian Zeiler crying out his lonely warning to a disbelieving world. On the very first day of our arrival every alien on the alien planet would know about it because the very first aliens we would eat would be the ones trying to keep our arrival secret.

>Did you ever see one of those old photos of the buffalo hunters of the American West, standing in front of a mountain of buffalo skulls with great stacks of buffalo hides everywhere you looked. That's what Alien World will look like within a few years of our arrival, with the aliens standing in for the buffalo. If it turns out there are aliens and they are eating human flesh, within a year, every last one of them will wish he had never heard the name of man and within ten years the only aliens left will be stuffed alien carcasses in a few human museums.

Well, our little plan actually worked. You saw ID4 and are now ready to fight the aliens. The MIB will contact you shortly. From: mleese@hudson.CS.unb.ca

"Teeth"

On Tue, 09 Jul 1996 19:29:36 -0700 Paul Morris (morris@best.com) wrote:

Some clarification is needed in this discussion. The ultimate form of raw data is a two-dimensional array of integers, each of which represents the grey level (assuming a noncolor picture) for a single pixel.

Yes, what was transmitted back from Mars by the Viking spacecraft was numbers. ...

Presumably Leese is claiming that he has looked at the numbers, and not just the original prints.

No, I did not look at the list of numbers. Let me explain. A problem with any image processing is the generation of artifacts. In general, the more complicated the image processing technique, then the more likely the it is to generate artifacts. My goal, when enhancing The Face to look for evidence of teeth, was to avoid the generation of artifacts. I therefore used the simplest techniques possible, and carefully chose benign ones (benign = no artifacts). Here is exactly what I did:

I brought over GIF images of the whole frames of the two "high" resolution images of The Face. Note that the raw data was in GIF files which are losslessly compressed - no JPEGs.

I did not attempt to correct defects in the raw data. (In the trade we call this cosmetic processing.) I left untouched the "pepper and salt" (also called "pinholes") and the faceplate registration marks. Somebody suggested that the teeth might result from such defects. I found no obviously defective data in the mouth.

I cropped the images to a small area, I think about 20 by 20 pixels, that contained the mouth. The mouth is about 10 by 2 pixels, but at an angle.

I rotated the images by 180 degrees. Providing you rotate by a multiple of 90 degrees and do not resample, this does not change existing pixel values or generate new pixels.

I enlarged the images using pixel replication. This just makes small square pixels appear as large squares.

I contrast stretched the images interactively so that I could see every pixel value in the mouth. On my monitor this required me to use several contrast stretches.

I looked for any evidence of teeth.

I did all this using the shareware 'XV' package running on a UNIX (Sun) workstation.

If so, I would like him to specify his source for the "raw data" so we can go and look at it for ourselves.

http://www.msss.com/http/new_directories/education/facepage/face.html

The raw data is available from many sources. When I first started looking at The Face in 1991 I obtained the raw data from an FTP site in Finland.

Finally, I wish to stress a couple of points:

What I have done is repeatable. That experiments be repeatable is a cornerstone of science. I encourage everyone to repeat what I did. If people get different results from me then I am happy to work with them to find out why.

It would be useful if people used raw data from a differnt source that the one I used and different software.

Buried on archieve tapes, I have the raw data from Finland plus software of my own design to process it. I do not have the time to unearth this, but if people report different results from mine then I will make time.

The ball is now in the court of the people claiming evidence of teeth.

Subject: Even Ford cars are getting on the band wagon

Hey guys and gals, Anyone seen the new Ford car television and cinema ad? Other than being a cracking good advertisement, it's also about UFOs (well, the car becoming a UFO.) For those who haven't seen it: It involves a green eyed humanoid looking out over the earth from the door of his Ford xxxxx xxx (can't remember the name of it.) The green eyed humanoid driving through Area 51 (The car wheels ride over a broken down sign reading Area 51.) The car becoming a flaming white comet going into the atmosphere. The Air Force going berserk and calling out the fighter crews. The 'UFO Ford', being tracked by radar. The 'UFO Ford' landing on the moon and riding to a halt in one of the craters.

It's on British television - not sure about other countries. Interesting that car manufacturers are now jumping on the Alien bandwagon and employing these supernatural concepts which 'we' all hold so dear.;-)

Subject: MASTER CHRONOLOGY: 1930 AD

TO 1939 AD

Leading Edge Research Group

This initial historical analysis was assembled as a chronological chart and took months to accomplish. It is by no means complete. Resting on the known fact that the universe is stranger that you think it is, extreme flexibility was allowed relative to the entries in the chronology, sometimes reaching into the fringe. Of course, that's were all the fun is. Whether you realize it or not, experience means knowing the unknown, even if if might seem ridiculous to the logical or linear mind, very strange facts have been known to come together in strange ways. They always do. When you examine the chronology, which was for me an organizational research tool, keep that in mind. I decided to include it in the book because I thought you might somehow find it useful in your own examination. Don't get into a state because you feel I "left something out" or "didn't include something else" or "shouldn't have included this". I did it for me, remember? Items are there because of informational relationship within the overall paradigm under examination. Names are not changed to unprotect the ignorant dullards who decided to try and run the show. Silly rabbit. Kids need love, not psychotherapy and psychocybernetic control. I trust you will find the following to be of use in your overall investigations.

1930 William Wirt, who pioneered Carnegie's German Wundt school system in Gary, Indiana and tried it in New York, is committed to an insane asylum in Washington, D.C where he died in 1932. Wirt was committed because he began to make public speeches saying that he had been part of a world wide conspiracy to bring about a controlled state in the hands of certain people- the same people, no doubt, who committed him.

1930 Baron Werner Von Braun moves freely back and forth between Nazi facilities and space facilities in southwestern US.

1930 Max Theiler develops a yellow fever vaccine.

1930 Japan tests chemical warfare weapons on Formosa.

1930 The supposed reappearance of "St. Germain".

1930 Ernst Rudin, professor of psychiatry at Munich and director of the Dept.of Heredity at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute visits the US and was praised by the leaders of the Carnegie Foundation. Rudin, later architect of Nazi Germany sterilization law, was financially supported by a large Rockefeller grant.

1930 Henry Coanda begins work on lenticular gravity craft designs.

1930 ITT begins to invest in Nazi pre-war economy.

1930 Diptheria vaccinations injure 32 and kill 16 in Columbia.

1930 Standard Oil announces it has an alcohol monopoly in Germany.

1930 Nazi party in Germany begins its meteoric rise to power.

1931 Japan begins a 15 year reign of totalitarianism by invading China.

1931 Standstill Agreement of 1931 allows Germany a moratorium on war debts through the 1930's. A pact between the London, New York and German branches of the Warburg and Schroder Houses.

1931 Bank for International Settlements founded. The records are maintained at the Hoover Institution today.

1931 Fluoride in drinking water is found to be the cause of brown teeth now known as dental fluorosis.

1931 H.Trendley Dean of the U.S. Public Health Service initiates studies on fluorides under the jurisdiction of Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon (founder of Alcoa aluminum, who is one of the main suppliers of toxic sodium fluoride as a by-product of aluminum manufacture) publishes a purposely skewed study showing that, at lppm, fluoride results in the reduction of tooth decay.

1931 Bechtel consortium build the Bonneville Dam, San Franciso Bridge and Hoover Dam between 1931 and 1936. Friend of Warren is John McCone, a steel saleman. Hoover (Boulder) Dam is financed by the Schroder-Rockefeller Group. Henry Schroder placed on Bechtel board as chairman of finance committee. Huge government contracts for Bechtel follow this appointment.

1931 Wilhelm Reich publishes "The Invasion of Compulsor, Sex-Morality".

1931 Business Week raises issue of AMA censoring of drug ad copy.

1931 W.Averall Harriman, son of E.H.Harriman, merges his banking house with Brown Brothers to form Brown Brothers Harriman. In 1933, BBH would back the expansion of the CBS television network.

1931 I.G. Farben and Alcoa Aluminum sign Alig Agreement pooling patents.

1931 I.G. Farben complex begins large contributions to fund Nazi cause.

1931 Cornelius Rhoads, a North American pathologist at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Investigations in Puerto Rico, carries out an experiment on Puerto Ricans deliberately infecting them with cancer. Thirteen die. In a letter leaked to the Puerto Rican Nationalist Party, Rhoads wrote, "the Porto Ricans (sic) are lazy and degenerate. What the island needs is something to exterminate the entire population. I have done my best to further the extermination." The president of the PRNP brings the case to the press, and a legal investigation is initiated. The prosecutor exonerates Rhoads, calling him "a mentally ill person or a man with few scruples". Rhoads goes on in later years to direct the establishment of US Army chemical warfare labs in Maryland, Utah and Panama, for which he was awarded the Legion of Merit in 1945. (See 1945, Rhoads).

1931 Roosevelt endorses polio "immune serum", precursor to vaccines in 1950's.

1932 United States economy begins to show signs of recovery.

1932 German Kurt Lewin becomes director of the Tavistock Institute in London.

1932 The US Public Health Service initiates a study in Tuskegee, Alabama where black men are given syphillis. Four hundred men were unwittingly given the disease. No medical care was offered. The study ended when it was discovered in 1972, after 40 years. The office supervising this study was the predecessor of the Center for Disease Control unit now in charge of the AIDS program.

1932 Diptheria vaccines injure 171 and kill 1 in Charolles, France.

1932 Research (Young) indicates that neuritis is commonly precipitated following vaccination with anti-tetanus, anti-pneumococcal, and anti-meningitis serums.

1932 Third International Congress of Eugenics held in New York. Dr. Theodore Russell Robie of the Essex County Mental Hygiene Clinic in New Jersey presents "Selective Sterilzation for Race Culture", in which he called for the sterilzation of at least 14 million Americans who had received low IQ scores since World War I. Said Robie, "there are those who believe that our population has already attained a greater number than is necessary for the efficient running of the whole...". Conference financed by William Draper, a Thyssen Trust banker.

1932 Onassis works a deal with Joseph Kennedy, Eugene Meyer and Meyer Lansky for liquor shipment to Boston and a heroin deal with Franklin and Elliott Roosevelt.

1932 Over 140,000 school boards exist in the US. (See 1960)

1932 Germany's SS numbers over 42,000. Political murder increases. Wearing of the Nazi uniform banned in Germany. 1932 Hilter works with Viktor Schaubergers gravity craft designs. New designs come from Habermohl, Ballenzo and Miethe.

1932 FDR runs for president on platform supporting the gold standard and is elected.

1932 US Navy conducts maneuvers at Pearl Harbor to assess sea attack success.

1932 Standard Oil builds refineries in Germany. Supplies Nazis during WWII.

1932 Prince Bernhard of Netherlands joins Nazi SS and Farben Bilder company. Bernhard would later support Gerald Ford in his race for Congress.

1933 Kurt Lewin, director of the Tavistock Institute in London, comes to the United States and set up the Harvard Psychology Clinic, which originates the propaganda campaign to turn the American public against Germany in order to assure involvement of the United States in World War II.

1933 Hitler comes to power in Germany. Concentration camps imprison German dissidents. The Republic of Germany falls to National Socialism. Hiter announces that communists have stated that England must fall before communism can succeed. Hiter vows to defend England, who had succeeded in lulling Hitler into a false sense of security until they could declare war against him. In 1936, Hitler would arrange for meetings between German and English diplomats, but the result was never attained due to British agenda. In order to lure Hitler into World War II, Britain and the United States covertly guaranteed him adequate supplies. The German regime was responsible for the murder of 20,946,000 people between 1933-1945.

1933 FDR becomes president of the United States. The Great Seal of the United States, with Novus Ordo Seclorum (New Word Order) added to currency.

1933 Warren Bechtel dies mysteriously in Moscow, and his son Stephen takes over the Bechtel Consortium. (March 29, 1933). Warren dies of a drug overdose.

1933 The Illuminati encounter short, grey reptilian humanoids having taller reptilian elite. Deals are made for overlapping planetary aims and joint control of a one-world electronic society; reptilian humanoids move bases of operation from South and Central America to the American Southwest.

1933 RCA makes vast strides in technology through 1934 with highly technical information from an unknown source.

1933 Institute for Advanced Studies formed at Princeton University.

1933 FDR passes Emergency Banking Relief Act (Mar 4th) of 1933 to illegally amend Trading With the Enemy Act of 1917. The action was illegal because the US was no longer at war. The Banking Relief Act of 1933 creates a wedge whereby wartime powers are sanctioned for use in peacetime. The Banking Relief Act declared March 6, 1933 a Bank Holiday order which relieved US banks from their contractual obligation to the people of the US of redeeming their Federal Reserve Notes in Gold. The concept of the Federal Reserve note was, before this act, constituted a "warehouse receipt" for real Gold which the people had placed on deposit at banks. Furthermore, the parent Trading With The Enemy Act of 1917 excluded all citizens of the US who conducted business wholly within the United States. The Banking Relief Act amends the TWE Act in such a way to now include all citizens of the US from now on, equating the people of the US as an enemy, and all legal and commercial intercourse became illegal. The only way to do business in the US thereafter was to obtain permission from the state through getting a license. From this the Uniform Commercial Code would spring. Furthermore, the EBR Act created the whole paradigm of licenses, drivers license, etc.

The government (Washington DC) in this way protects itself from the people (enemy).

1933 FDR redefines State of Emergency to include any national crisis.

1933 FDR declares a National State of Emergency.

1933 FDR issues Executive Order 2039, March 6, 1933 and Executive Order 2040 on March 9, 1933. The now belligerent United States (federal government), acting under the TWE/EBR Acts just established, seizes title to all lawful constitutional money (Gold), and takes possession of the Gold, leaving the American people, forever enemies, without lawful means to pay debt. From now on, people are forced to mortgage property. All debt cannot be "paid", but only "discharged". The people become captured chattel property of the US to "secure the debt". Former states become "political subdivisions" or occupied territories of the belligerent corporate United States. Americans are ordered to turn in their gold coins, bullion, other gold resources. During this period, over $114 million in gold was taken from banks for export, and $150 million in gold was wit hdrawn for hiding purposes. Gold at $20.67/oz.

1933 FDR announces decision to devalue the dollar by announcing that the government would buy gold at an increased price. Currency is now in the form of Federal Reserve Bank Notes (War & Emergency currency) and not Federal Reserve Notes (warehouse rece ipt for gold on deposit).

1933 Former judicial Courts of Justice take silent judicial notice of International Maritime Law In Rem jurisdiction, and assume the role as Executive Officers (not judicial) to enforce the Federal and State statutes in all cases. Judges become executive political hatchetmen to enforce public policy statute enacted by Congress and top enforce performance on Federal Reserve Bank Notes in order to give it the appearance of value.

1933 The citizens of the United States, now declared enemies of the United States, find themselves with unlawfully suspended rights. The Constitution and the Bill of Rights no longer apply. American people now have no unalienable rights to life, liberty, or property.

1933 Citizens of the United States come under the control of the United Socialist States of the District of Columbia (USSA).

1933 US banks number 14,771.

1933 Wilhelm Reich publishes "The Mass Psychology of Fascism", which earns him a death sentence from the Nazis. Reich leaves Germany.

1933 Germans begin to study the effects of microwave radiation on humans.

1933 Japan creates an Army Chemical Warfare School at Narashino near Tokyo.

1933 Creation of the Gestapo in Germany.

1933 By 1933 most Jewish psychotherapists had fled the profession in Germany, and all were gone by 1938.

1933 Danish researcher Thorvald Madsen discovers the Pertussis vaccines ability to kill infants without warning

(SID). He reports that two babies vaccinated immediately after birth died in a few minutes.

1933 Outbreak of encephalitis in St. Louis, Missouri.

1933 US murder rate 200:100,000.

1933 Legal tender laws permanently enacted for US currency.

1933 American researchers report that children react to Pertussis vaccine with fever, convulsions and collapse.

1933 Vaccination programs against Yellow Fever begin in the United States.

1933 Madison Grant in the US publishes "Conquest of a Continent", a "racial history of the United States", and sends a copy to Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, who was Hitlers chief scientific advisor, and to Dr. Fritz Lenz at the University of Munich.

1933 H.H. Laughlin (see 1922) receives an honorary degree from Germany's Heidelberg University, a major Nazi research center on "race purification", for his contribution to eugenics.

1933 Nevada passes legislation permitting casino operations and legal gambling. The organized crime faction moves in, headed by the Lansky syndicate.

1933 Ritual sacrifice of Jews reinstated. Stepped up after 1940.

1933 A profusion of German tourists swarm over the SW United States, buying land, checking mineral rights and cavern locations.

1933 Congressman McFadden brings impeachment charges against Fed Reserve.

1933 Future UAW president Walter Reuther visits Soviet Gorki military plant.

1933 Berlin Debt Conference.

1933 Compulsory immunization instituted in Geneva.

1933 Hitler institutes the Nazi Act for Averting Descendants Afflicted with Hereditary Diseases, which set up the eugenics courts which eventually ordered the sterilization of 375,000 people before the start of WWII. The law was based on the Model Eugenical Sterilization Law published by eugenics expert H.H. Laughlin in the US in 1922. Germanys Sterilization Law was written by Ernst Rudin.

1933 Hereditary Heath Courts formed in Germany to carry out the law. By 1937, there would be 225,000 sterlized as a result of the Courts.

1933 Conference with Hitler, Dulles brothers, Kurt von Schroder to promise money from the United States to build up Nazi Germany.

1933 Standard Oil (US) sends $2 million to Germany chemical industry.

1933 Diptheria cases decline in Britain over the period of a year.

1933 Arthur Kallet publishes study. Food Dyes Violet 1 and Citrus Red 2 cancer.

1933 I.G. Farben gives Nazis 4.5 million RM.

1933 World Fair in Chicago has amoebic dysentary outbreak. AMA conceals it.

1933 487 sightings of UFOS in Scandinavia (240 Norway,96 Sweden, 157 Finland)

1933 The secret society which would become the OSS-CIA begins biotelemetry implants in unsuspecting people. Implants activated by touching the skin with an electrified rod. (The paradigm of Vril?)

1934 Nazi Party Day rally in Nuremburg.

1934 Rockefeller interests in the United States create the National Planning Board (NPB), an attempted resource grab. The National Planning Board was cooked up by economists at the London School of Economics. The NPB was created by the Rockefeller Foundation and staffed with people from the University of Chicago.

1934 Mein Kampf designated as required reading for German psychotherapists.

1934 British embark on a biological warfare project.

1934 Hitler meets with Viktor Schauberger (researcher into implosion vortex propulsion).

1934 Denmark sugar consumption is 113 pounds per person annually.

1934 Death rate for diabetes in Denmark is 19 per 100,000.

1934 Rockefeller establishment by now has extremely close ties with Nazi Germany.

1934 Onassis and Rockefeller as head of Standard Oil (Exxon) sign a cartel memo to beat the Arabs out of their oil ands ship it on Onassis ships.

1934 John D. Rockefeller creates $50 million trusts for his sons.

1934 In Germany, the SS was designated as the Army of the Nazi Party.

1934 McFadden Impeachment Resolution to repeal Federal Reserve Act. Buried in committee.

1934 Drs. Chaffee and Light publish manuscript entitled "A Method for Remote Control of Electrical Stimulation of the Nervous System".

1934 Germans produce first pilotless aircraft.

1934 IG. Farbenindustrie completely under Nazi control.

1934 Germany maintains nine main concentration camps and thousands of smaller ones, initially imprisoning thousands of Germans who disagree with the Nazis, then others who did not meet the Aryan criteria for racial purity. [See Darwinian paradigm in Matrix III Volume II].

1934 FDR prohibits private ownership of gold in the United States.

1934 To prepare for the next presidential election, the backers of FDR set up his "opposition" and create the "Liberty League", who publically smears FDR and his staff as "Communist" (which many of them were). FDR is given a chance to speak against the "opposition", calling them "the Old Guard". Gerald Smith is employed by the backers of FDR to smear FDR as "anti-semetic", in a covert ploy that operated until FDR's election in 1936.

1935 French-American Nobel Prize winner Dr. Alexis Carrel publishes "Man, the Unknown", in which he advocates murder of criminals and the mentally ill in euthanasia institutions.

1935 Goldborough Bill HR9216 to repeal Federal Reserve Act. Buried in committee.

1935 Italians begin to use chemical weapons in Abyssinia (Ethiopia).

1935 Egas Moniz performs the first lobotomy in Portugal. Ironically, Moniz is shot and paralyzed in 1939 by one of his patients, and beaten to death by another in 1955.

1935 New York American (7/11/35) has an article on "Tesla's Controlled Earth Quakes", in which Tesla states, "experiments in transmitting controlled vibrations throught the Earth (telegeodynamics) were roughly described as a "controlled earthquake". According to Tesla, "the vibrations pass through the Earth with no loss of energy. It becomes possible to convey mechanical effects over great distances and produce all kinds of unique effects. The invention could be used with destructive effect in war."

1935 Lobotomy introduced in the United States. In the next 30 years, over 100,000 people would have their brain mutilated in American institutions. At the University of Mississippi Medical Center, Dr. Orlando J. Andy would apply lobotomy to six-year-old children.

1935 Nazis institute the Law for the Protection of the Genetic Health of the German People, which required couples to have a medical examination before marriage; the law forbade marriage if a person was considered "genetically defective", and did not permit marriage between Aryans and Jew, Gypsies, Slavs and others deemed inferior.

1935 Russians arrested in China found carrying vials of dysentary, cholera and anthrax for sabotage missions against the Japanese. Some missions were successful.

1935 Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute in New York publishes Man The Unknown, advocating abolition of prisons and disposal of criminals through euthanasia institutions or alteration through surgical procedures.

1935 The Rockefeller Trust begins the process of pouring $90 million dollars into research in molecular biology, the basis of genetic engineering, through 1959.

1935 L.L. Vasilev, Russian physiologist and parapsychologist publishes a monograph entitled "Critical Evaluation of the Hypnogogic Method", which details various experiments by Dr.I.F. Tomashevsky on remote radio control of the brain at a distance. Post hypnotic suggestions were implemented within 60 seconds.

1935 Nazi government issues decree requiring German industry to keep secret any discovery with military potential. 1935 British scientist Robert Watson-Watt credited with the discovery of radar.

1936 FDR re-elected in the United States. Roosevelt then marries his son to a member of the Dupont family. FDR could now involve the United States in World War II as planned.

1936 Pertussis vaccine introduced in the United States. Autism begins to appear in children shortly thereafter.

1936 Tesla made head of ONR invisibility project. Research continues until 1940 test in Brooklyn Naval Yard.

1936 British government deems everyone in Britain must have a gas mask.

1936 German scientist Dr.Gerhard Schrader, researching new insecticides, makes the formulation later deemed "Tabun", the original nerve gas. Schrader is summoned to Berlin to demonstrate Tabun to the Wehrmacht. Tabun is an orthophosphate, as is Sarin.

1936 New York Times announces debut of new Schroder-Rockefeller holding company. (Avery Rockefeller) Rockefeller holds 42% of the stock and Baron Kurt von Schroder in Cologne, Germany (Hitlers personal banker) holds 47%. Allen Dulles was a director of Schroder Company.

1936 Washington Post taken over by Eugene Meyer. Mafia controls media by 1940.

1936 Walter Freeman and James W. Watts help promote lobotomy in the USA.

1936 I.G. Farben releases discovery of sulfanilamide. Released in US in 1937.

1936 Avery Rockefeller sets up Schroder-Rockefeller Company. Schroder is Hitler's banker.

1936 Himmler becomes chief of the German Police and reorganizes it into two branches, the Uniformed Branch (responsible for public order) and the Security Police (Gestapo and SS Security Service (SD), who ran German Protective Custody Compounds (concentration camps).

1936 Hermann G=F6rings Four Year Plan begins.

1936 Berlin Psychoanalytic Institute disappears as an institution in Germany.

1936 Diptheria vaccine injures 75 in France.

1936 Matthias G=F6ring protects Jungian psychologist Gerhard Adler and facilitates his escape to Switzerland. (Cousin of Herman G=F6ring).

1936 l.G. Farben produces Zyklon B gas for extermination camps.

1936 Anti-Communist pact signed by Japan and Germany.

1936 Roosevelt policies in the Pacific force the Japanese to capitulate or fight.

1936 Second wave of UFO sightings in Scandinavia.

1936 Matthias G=F6ring establishes German Institute for Psychological Research and Psychotherapy, dubbed the G=F6ring Institute. The Institutes work in psychotherapy was supported by the Luftwaffe and had ongoing professional contact with the Reuch Criminal Police Office, the SS Lebensborn, the League of German Girls and individual members of the Nazi hierarchy. Funds were later received from the Reuch Research Council, chaired by Matthias' cousin, Hermann G=F6ring. Institute renamed in 1944.

1936 Attempts made on the life of radient energy researcher T. Moray.

1936 At the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, Hitlers observation box is shared by John J. McCloy, a lawyer in the employ of I.G. Farben. McCloy would later be president of Rockefellers Chase Manhattan Bank, chairman of the CFR, and serve on the Warren Commission investigating the assassination of Kennedy. During the period following the war, McCloy pardoned 70,000 Nazis accused of war crimes. McCloy also pardoned General Walter Domberger, convicted at Nuremberg of collaborating to murder 6,000 prisoners, because Von Braun refused to work for the US rocket program without him. Von Braun was named by the author of Nomenclature of an Assassination Cabal as a key operative in the assassination of Kennedy. He was associated closely with the Defense Industrial Security Command (DISC), the secret police agency in the US for munitions manufacturers. Many DISC executives are reported to have been Mafia. Von Braun was also in charge of the Security Division of NASA. McCloy later worked in US intelligence.

1937 German manufacturing trials for nerve gas Tabun begin using fluorides.

1937 Henry Coffin and John Foster Dulles lead the US delegation to England to found the World Council of Churches as a "peace movement" guided by the pro-Hitler factions in England. The Coffin family, mainstays of the lobby for euthanasia and eugenics, survive the Hitler era and are integrated into the CIA in the 1950's.

1937 The regime of Hideki Tojo in Japan would be responsible for 3,990,000 murders between 1937 and 1945.

1937 Another outbreak of encephalitis in St. Louis, Missouri.

1937 American I.G. has substantial stock holdings in Dupont and Kodak in USA.

1937 The German edition of Madison Grants book "Conquest of a Continent" is released in Berlin. Dr. Eugen Fischer of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, in his praise for the book, notes "the racial idea hasbecome one of the chief foundations of the National Socialist State's population policies."

1937 Morris Fishbein gains control as editor of the AMA, along with Dr. Olin West.

1937 AMA "approves" drug sulfanilamide with diethylene glycol. Kills people. 1937 Japanese production of mustard gas reaches 2 tons per day.

1937 Japanes build biological warfare facility called Pingfan in Manchuria. It is complete by 1939. Destroyed in 1945 as Russians approach. The Japanese wage biological war against China until 1945.

National UFO Reporting Center Sightings: April, 1996

The listing on the next few pages was pulled from NUFORC's Web page at http://www.nwlink.com/~ufocntr. This is proof that UFOs are continuing to be reported at a good clip, despite the fact that they are not reported by the major media. We've also included some of the more interesting case studies which were accompanied by pictures. The National UFO Reporting Center is run by Peter Davenport. His address is P.O. Box 45623, Seattle, WA 98145. Peter was a guest on The ParaNet Continuum radio show on September 24, 1995 (show #76). Copies of that radio program can be ordered from ParaNet. See the ad in the back of this magazine.

National UFO Reporting Center Case Brief La Crosse, WA December 29, 1994

NUFORC Home Page

At approximately 2145 hours on Thursday night, December 29, 1994, a mother (with her six children) was driving north on the Zaring Cut-Off Road in southeastern Washington State, just 5 miles north of the Snake River. Several of her children suddenly started shouting, and called the mother's attention to three extraordinarily bright lights above a recently harvested wheat field off to the right (east) side of the road. At first they thought the lights were the landing lights of an airliner at low altitude, perhaps making a forced landing in the field, and flying directly toward them. Then one of the older children suggested the lights were the headlights on a "semi" (an 18-wheel truck), but they almost immediately realized that description didn't fit, either.

Suddenly, the family began to see the objects that were attached to the three lights, and they were awed by the vision! They saw three coal black, delta-shaped craft, with articulating structures on their noses, from which the blinding lights were radiating. They appeared to be scanning the ground ahead of them. The objects, apparently locked in tight, unwavering formation, slowly drifted across the road (and car) at very low speed, slowly turned left (south) and proceeded south parallel to the road the family was on.

The mother submitted an excellent 3-page report, together with a drawing of one of the crafts she reportedly witnessed that night. In addition, she submitted a detailed drawing of the area and the approximate flight path of the objects.

Drawing of La Crosse, Washington ship provided by witness

The mother reported that the objects were right above their car, they gave off a barely perceptible humming sound ("...like an electric refrigerator..."), and they were close enough that a "person with a good throwing arm could have hit them with a rock." When I talked with her on January 01, 1995, (Our first call of the year), she was still seemingly upset by the experience. She volunteered that she was frightened to either drive, or even go outside, after dark, which is not uncommon among people who have had recent UFO experiences.

(Note: Ships of quite similar shape have been reported to the Center from all over the country)

National UFO Reporting Center Case Brief Warm Beach, WA January 07, 1995

NUFORC Home Page

On Saturday, January 07, 1995, two women had spent the day photographing quilts north of Seattle, arriving back at their home in Warm Beach, WA, late that evening. As one of the women was unloading her camera equipment from the car, both women suddenly became aware of a very bright light passing overhead at a relatively fast rate. The photographer quickly grabbed a 35-millimeter camera and snapped the (color) photograph that appears below(in B & W). The original print is more dramatic than the rendition here, but even the B & W version will provide the reader with a fairly good idea of the event.

The color photograph, apparently taken at high speed, shows two parallel, pulsed streaks of light curving across the field of view of the camera and descending into an evergreen forest, which is brightly illuminated.
