

'Burning Bodies In Secret' – New Accounts From Wuhan Detail Coronavirus Outbreak

by Tyler Durden
Fri, 01/31/2020 - 07:43

Almost 2,000 new cases of coronavirus were confirmed in China on Thursday, lifting the country's total to approximately 9,692, surpassing all of the 2002–03 SARS epidemic in a matter of weeks. All of the deaths have been in China, now at 213. Globally, there are 9,816 cases of the deadly virus.

There have been doubts about the officially confirmed cases and deaths in China – could be much higher some claim.

The New Zealand Herald has published a new report that alleges Chinese authorities have resorted to cremating bodies in secret.

DW News East Asia correspondent William Yang cited a report from Chinese-language news outlet Initium, which said cremation facilities in Wuhan, the epicenter of the deadly virus, were receiving bodies directly from hospitals without proper identification and were excluded from the official record.

William Yang
@WilliamYang120

Just to add a bit more to what was mentioned in the show but I wasn't able to elaborate on - #China's state media has been reporting about building new hospitals dedicated to treating #Wuhanvirus patients in multiple provinces and cities, which I think reflect the ... twitter.com/ajstream/statu...

The Stream @AJStream

Can coronavirus be stopped? Join our LIVE discussion now on @AJEnglish and YouTube. youtu.be/te2AZikNVFc

91 8:06 PM - Jan 29, 2020 · Taipei City, Taiwan

58 people are talking about this

William Yang @WilliamYang120 · Jan 29, 2020

Replying to @WilliamYang120

... seriousness of the spread in #China, but also the lack of facilities that can handle the rising number of patients.

Privacy William Yang

@WilliamYang120

Also, one thing that #China is hiding is the number of death caused by the virus. Credible Chinese media outlet @initiumnews interviewed people working at local cremation centers, confirming that many dead bodies were sent directly from the hospitals to the cremation centers...

387 8:09 PM - Jan 29, 2020 · Taipei City, Taiwan

387 people are talking about this

"So, there are reasons to remain skeptical about what China has been sharing with the world because while they have been more transparent about certain things related to the virus, they continue to be sketchy and unreliable in other aspects," said Yang.

William Yang

@WilliamYang120

Replying to @WilliamYang120

So there are reasons to remain skeptical about what #Chins has been sharing with the world because while they have been more transparent about certain things related to the virus, they continue to be sketchy and unreliable in other aspects.

152 8:12 PM - Jan 29, 2020 · Taipei City, Taiwan

66 people are talking about this

"Without properly identifying these patients, which means there are patients who died from the virus but not adding to the official record. That shows the current death toll of 133 that we are seeing is way too low," he said.

William Yang

@WilliamYang120

Replying to @WilliamYang120

... without properly identifying these patients, which means there are patients who died from the virus but not adding to the official record. That shows the current death toll of 133 that we are seeing is way too low.

180 8:11 PM - Jan 29, 2020 · Taipei City, Taiwan

115 people are talking about this

We noted Thursday night that over 100,000 Chinese had been placed under observation for suspected coronavirus.

The virus has uncontrollably spread across China, forcing the U.S. State Department to evacuate diplomats and citizens from certain parts of the country, but has also warned Americans not to travel to the region because of the outbreak.

The new travel advisory was issued hours after the World Health Organization declared the outbreak a th emergency. "Those currently in China should consider departing using commercial means," the department said in the advisory.

Privacy

Putting the coronavirus in the context of the deadly SARS epidemic, the coronavirus pandemic has now officially exceeded SARS in cumulative cases in just two weeks.

New accounts are showing that things have gotten so severe in Wuhan, that officials are locking people inside their own apartments.

NEVER MISS THE NEWS THAT MATTERS MOST

ZEROHEDGE DIRECTLY TO YOUR INBOX

Receive a daily recap featuring a curated list of must-read stories.

Your email...

Subscribe

沉默的力量 The power of silence

@2mmbPkM00IJwIUV

朋友圈看到大量封门视频，这样是要把人闷死在里面吗？！如果没有食物了怎么办？如果有急事生病了怎么办！！

Privacy