

Subject: Re: Workshop on genome editing in insects, Shanghai October 28-31, 2017
From: aajames <aajames@uci.edu>
Date: 6/14/2017 2:32 PM
To: Fred Gould <fgould@ncsu.edu>

Understood! OK, there will be other opportunities!

On 2017-06-14 11:23, Fred Gould wrote:

Tony,
I hesitated to reply then forgot to.
The problem is both time and money. We are low on both but because the invitation was interesting I figured that I should give it some thought---In the end, it's probably best that we stick with trying to get some papers and a grant proposal written.
Thanks for the invitation,
Fred

On Jun 14, 2017, at 2:10 PM, aajames <aajames@uci.edu> wrote:

Hi Fred,

I know you got a lot going on, but any thoughts about this?

Best,

Tony

----- Original Message -----

Subject: Workshop on genome editing in insects, Shanghai October 28-31, 2017

Date: 2017-06-02 08:42

From: aajames <aajames@uci.edu>

To: Fred Gould <fgould@ncsu.edu>

Cc: Yongping Huang <yphuang@sibs.ac.cn>

Hello Fred,

Yongping Huang and I have been working on organizing a workshop on genome editing in insect to be held October 28-31, 2017 in Shanghai. I have attached the announcement and the list of attendees that we have so far.

I don't suppose there is any chance that you would be able to come, but it would be good to have someone from your lab come and talk about the recent modeling you have been doing. We are applying to get funding to cover registration costs so you would only have to cover the flight. Please talk this over with you group and let us know if there is someone who might want to attend.

Thanks!

| | Tony<Announcement with draft program for mailing 20170602.pdf>

| |