Description	The British Government has declassified and released most of its UFO files. Nick Pope worked on these files, wrote many of the documents in them and - through his hundreds of media interviews - has been the public face of the release program. The following Q&A with Nick Pope gives an overview of the release of the files and is also designed as a quotable resource for journalists and academics 228 files and around 60,000 pages of documentation have been released. This is in addition to a number of UFO files that had already been released under the old Public Record Act, the best-known provision of which was the so-called 30-year rule, which said files could be considered for public release 30 years after the date of the most recent document contained in them			Can be additional information where a file name has ambiguous naming.
