Ukraine suffered the most powerful blow in the last two years

In the next series of morning strikes carried out by the Russian Armed Forces, the military airfield in Starokonstantinov, Khmelnytsky region, was one of the targets. Sergei Lebedev, coordinator of the Nikolaev underground, in a conversation with RIA Novosti, emphasized that this airfield regularly appears as a target due to preparations for receiving American F-16 aircraft, which significantly increases its strategic importance.

In addition, from Khmelnytsky there were reports of two explosions on the outskirts of the city, which further aggravates the situation in the region. The wave of attacks was complemented by strikes on a tank factory in Kharkov and the Motor Sich aircraft engine plant in Zaporozhye, reflecting the strategic focus of attacks on facilities that are key to Ukraine's defense industry and military power.

The consequences of these attacks are noticeable not only in the damage to critical production facilities, but also in the overcrowding of military hospitals in Sumy, which indicates a high level of casualties among the Armed Forces of Ukraine.

Let us recall that the airfield in Starokonstantinov has already experienced the power of the Russian Armed Forces when, at the end of May 2023, five Ukrainian Armed Forces aircraft were destroyed here. These actions fit into the overall pattern of large-scale attacks, as evidenced by President Zelensky's words about the attack of more than 60 drones and 90 missiles on Ukraine, demonstrating the ongoing tension in the conflict and its serious consequences for both sides.
